

The E. J. Ourso College of Business at LSU strives to be a leader in research, education, and economic development among public business schools. Part of a rich tradition of excellence at LSU, the college continues to be both ambitious and innovative in all endeavors.

The E. J. Ourso College is home to the first and most honored internal auditing program. LSU's Center for Internal Auditing has produced 16 winners of the William S. Smith Student Highest Achievement Award for the highest score on the international Certified Internal Auditor Exam.

A team of LSU accounting students has reached the finals of PricewaterhouseCoopers' xACT Accounting Competition five years in a row now and won the national competition in both 2005 and 2006.

The Flores MBA Program at the E. J. Ourso College is ranked in the Top 10 by regional recruiters in The Wall Street Journal.

Forbes.com and The Princeton Review ranked LSU and the E. J. Ourso College's Entrepreneurship Program third in the nation. The entrepreneurship program has also been ranked in the top tier of comprehensive entrepreneurship programs by Entrepreneur magazine.

The Louisiana Business & Technology Center, the E. J. Ourso College's small business incubator, was named 2005 National Incubator of the Year by the National Business Incubator Association.

Modern Chinese Business and Culture is a major undertaking for the E. J. Ourso College and LSU. Highly qualified undergraduates and Flores MBA students have the opportunity to experience China through language immersion, by studying at top Chinese universities, and through internships with companies located in China.
